Secretary Byrnes Presents Report Of Peace Efforts

Tells American People Of Efforts To Settle Differences With Russia

PLAN FOR ACTION IN GERMANY GIVEN

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Secretary of State Byrnes today awaited the verdict of the American people on his efforts to bring peace and security to the world, particularly in settling differences with Russia.

Byrnes laid his case before the public in a half-hour radio address Monday night. He made it clear that the issue lies between the United States and the Soviet Union. But he also emphasized that the grounds for disagreement far exceed the grounds for disagreement. Byrnes said:

"I have no desire to conceal from the American people the great struggle and tremendous difficulties the four governments (U. S., United Kingdom, France, and U.S.S.R.) had in harmonizing their views to the extent they did in these treaties."

He referred to the tentative drafts reached at Paris on treaties for Italy, Finland, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. He added:

"In the long run we shall have a much better chance to work out our problems if we and our allies recognize the basic differences in our ideas, standards and methods instead of trying to make ourselves believe that they do not exist or that they are less important than they are."

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Pa Newc noticed the Grant street bridge was receiving new lettering on the no parking signs Monday afternoon.

The cartway of Taylor street, which is under repair, is showing the use of non-travel. Pa Newc noticed in his Monday afternoon rounds. Workmen will soon be able to harvest a crop of hay from the grass that is growing up in the middle of the street.

Plastics have been used for a lot of things, but the first plastic merchandise trailer was seen parked on North Mercer street Monday night. The sides were plastic thin which the interior could be seen and the floor was plastic to permit a view of the workings of the huge trailmobile.

Shortage of critical materials is sending some of the late model cars out on the streets of the city with wooden bumpers, Pa Newc observes. The cars are equipped in both the front and rear with the temporary bumper, which does not add to the looks of the car, but saves the grille and other parts of the car from damage.

In spite of the curfew and repeated warnings, Pa Newc notes children of ages from six to 12 years of age, running the streets of the city after 11 o'clock every night.

Slow freights are still the city bus drivers nightmare, on the Grant street run. Pa Newc learns, Monday afternoon, one of those extra slow freights pulled across the right of way, with several buses being (Continued on Page Two)

Injuries Are Fatal To W. J. Douglass

North Beaver Farmer Expires Early This Morning Following Tractor Accident

Gangrene, which developed following injuries received in a tractor accident at the farm of Harry Eckman, a neighbor, in North Beaver township on Saturday, resulted in the death of William J. Douglass, aged 62 years, R. D. 1, Enon Valley. Mr. Douglass died at 1:55 a. m. today in the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Mr. Douglass had hauled a load of hay into his barn, and while attempting to turn the tractor which was hauling the load, lost control of the heavy vehicle, which plunged through a set of doors on the opposite side of the barn, pinning him underneath it.

It took half an hour to extricate his body and the shock of the accident, coupled with gangrene, resulted in his death.

Born In Allegheny Co.

Mr. Douglass was born in Allegheny county February 2, 1884. He lived in the community for 30 years, being a farmer by trade, widely known by surrounding farmers. He was a member of the Bethel U. P. church, North Beaver township, and the Westfield grange.

His wife, Mrs. Belle Himmeger Douglass, survives and two brothers, George W. of Canonsburg, Pa., and Thomas H. of Carmel, Calif.; two (Continued on Page Two)

Constellations To Be Returned To Service By Army

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—The Army Air Forces planned today to return its Lockheed Constellation planes to flight service as soon as minor modifications are approved. The army's counterpart of the Constellation, the C-69, has been grounded since last September, when one crash landed at Linn, Kansas, with no loss of life. Thus, the army preceded the Civil Aeronautics board in stopping use of the huge four-engine transport by almost a year.

The CAB grounded Constellations last week for 30 days after one of the ships crashed in flames on a routine TWA training flight near Reading, Pa. Four persons were killed in the crash, which is under CAB investigation.

Charge Espionage By Russians In U.S. Zone

FRANKFURT, July 16.—(INS)—United States military intelligence officials revealed today that the Russians have been maintaining an espionage organization in the American occupation zone of Germany.

A spokesman said:

"Two weeks ago American intelligence agents took into custody three foreign civilians under circumstances which indicated espionage."

At the same time, he said, four other men immediately identified as Russians were picked up in the American section of Berlin.

A Red commander, he added, shortly afterward asked for the return of the latter four by name.

The intelligence officer explained that the policy of the American forces in the future might be "more severe", but the agents are being returned in compliance with the Russian request.

The spokesman said that an investigation determined that two of the men were Russian officers and the third a civilian agent.

He added that shortly thereafter a Red army commander asked for the return of the three men by name.

Seek To Smash Espionage In German Zone

BERLIN, July 16.—(INS)—Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, U. S. military commander in Berlin, joined intelligence officials in Frankfurt today in a determined campaign to smash Soviet espionage activities in the American occupation zone.

Keating pressed for a Russo-American parley to force a showdown on seizure of "hostages" by the Soviets, and revealed that U. S. forces now hold two Russian officers and one enlisted man for alleged espionage activities.

An intelligence spokesman said in Frankfurt, meanwhile, that the Russians have been maintaining a smooth-working spy ring in American-controlled territory.

He said existence of the ring was discovered two weeks ago when a Red army commander "named" four Russians supposedly picked up in (Continued on Page Two)

State Police To Have Location On East Side

State Police substation, now located on North Jefferson street hill, will be moved to an apartment building at the corner of Oak and Raymond street, East Side, sometime previous to Aug. 1, it was stated today by the officer in charge. The substation has been located for several years in their present quarters.

According to reports, the building has several garages and has a frontage of 170 feet and equally as many feet in depth. Men now are fixing the property for occupancy.

It is related that the property is known as the Miles property and was recently bought by Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kopsky, who at present rent quarters to the state police in their North Jefferson street building.

Manufacturer Is Recalled In Senate Probe

Witness Declares He "Cut Loose" From Garsson's Following Disclosures In Probe

DECISION ON CALL FOR MAY UNSETTLED

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—A disillusioned midwest manufacturer who would "rather be dead" than be linked again with two of his wartime partners was recalled for final questioning today in the senate "war profits" inquiry.

The witness was Allen B. Gellman, who told the Mead committee he had "cut loose" from Dr. Henry M. Garsson and his brother, Murray W. Garsson, following disclosure of attempts to "corrupt" the Senate investigation.

Ready to follow him with a similar disavowal of responsibility for actions of the promoting Garsson brothers was Gellman's brother-in-law, and long-time partner, Joseph T. Weiss, Louis Sarelis, Washington office manager for the munitions combine now under investigation, was scheduled as the last major witness.

Hearings Nearing End

Committee counsel said the sensational public hearings would wind up in a day or two and that then the senators would announce a final decision on whether to subpoena Rep. Andrew J. May (D) Ky.

New Extension For Pearl Harbor Report Is Sought

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—The Pearl Harbor committee was ready to ask Congress today for another four-day extension of time in which to file its now completed report on the 1941 Jap sneak attack.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.), committee chairman, will introduce the extension resolution in the Senate. Its purpose is to give newsmen time to digest the voluminous findings of the majority report and a minority report prepared by Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich. for himself and Sen. Brewster (R) Me.

Today was made the "deadline" for the report a week ago when it became apparent the committee could not complete its task by July 10, one of the many earlier deadlines.

Monday, the committee agreed to the further extension, giving the House-Senate group until Saturday to file its summary and conclusions on the three months of public hearings.

ASK $75,000 BAIL IN FORGING CASE

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—(INS)—Bail soared to $75,000 today for Harry Kauffmann, German born ex-army officer, who is being held by Federal authorities on charges of issuing bogus discharge papers and forging money order endorsements.

The counterfeit papers were allegedly used to aid him in reaping some $37,000 in the overseas black market while serving as a captain in the U. S. Army Intelligence.

Says Atomic Arms Race Under Way

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—W. A. Higinbotham, chairman of the Federation of Atomic Scientists, declared today on the atom bomb's first anniversary that a world-wide "atomic arms race is already well underway."

Higinbotham made the assertion at the Institute on World Control of Atomic Energy participated in by leading scientists and representatives of government industry and civic groups. He was a witness of the world's first atomic explosion at New Mexico last year.

Higinbotham asserted:

"Today the atomic arms race is already well underway. International maneuvering to control sources of raw materials for bombs is hidden from view."

Search For Uranium

"But we may be sure that behind the scenes the search for uranium is being carried out on a scale surpassing that of the gold rush of '49."

His statements followed criticism by Pierre Auger, French scientific consultant of the United Nations atomic energy commission, of secrecy cloaking America's atom bomb.

Expect OPA Bill Will Be Sent To Conferees Today

BELIEVE MOVE TO HAVE HOUSE FORWARD MEASURE WITHOUT CHANGE WILL LOSE

SECOND VETO IS BEING FORECAST

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Administration spokesmen expressed confidence that the OPA extension bill will be sent to conference today and that a move to forward the measure to the White House without change would be defeated.

House Speaker Rayburn (D) Tex. said there was no question of the result and Republican leaders privately conceded defeat of any attempt to have the house accept the bill as passed by the senate.

The administration is pinning its final hopes for a "workable" price control bill on 14 house and senate conferees to whom would be entrusted the task of writing a measure acceptable to President Truman.

There were some house members who favored insulating the conferees in advance to accept the senate amendments barring future controls on meat and dairy products. However, there was no unanimity on this and such action appeared unlikely as the house convened.

Administration Plan

Administration strategy was to send the OPA bill to conference without any action by the house (Continued on Page Two)

Heirens Denies He Has Confessed To Chicago Crimes

CHICAGO, July 16.—(INS)—William Heirens, 37, college-boy suspect in two murders and 29 burglaries and assaults, denied from his jail cell today that he had confessed the murder of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan.

His denial came a few hours before his arraignment in criminal court on indictments charging him with the burglaries and assaults with intent to kill, and was made to Warden Frank G. Sain of the Cook county jail.

The counterfeit papers were allegedly used to aid him in reaping some $37,000 in the overseas black market while serving as a captain in the U. S. Army Intelligence.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Prospects brightened considerably today for a final adjournment of Congress on July 27, with both Senate and House agreed to work for a final session by that date.

Former Yugoslav Chetnik Leader Denied Clemency By Highest Military Court

TEN OTHERS UNDER DEATH SENTENCES (BULLETIN)

BELGRADE, July 16.—(INS)—Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch lost his appeal for clemency today and is expected to die before a Yugoslav firing squad at dawn tomorrow.

The former Yugoslav Chetnik leader and war minister of the Yugoslavian government-in-exile was condemned to death yesterday along with ten of his followers. They were found guilty by Marshal Tito's highest military court of treason and wartime collaboration.

Appeal Rejected

Mikhailovitch's appeal for clemency was rejected by the presidium of the Yugoslav national assembly, the only channel—because of the supreme nature of the court—through which appeal could be made.

GEN. DRAJA MIKHAILOVITCH

Spokesman said the government does not intend to make representations to Yugoslavia in support of Mikhailovitch's plea.

Besides the death sentences, the court handed out prison sentences to 13 other defendants. These terms ranged from 18 months to 25 years at hard labor.

Confiscate Property

All the accused, ten of whom were tried in Absentia, were sentenced to loss of their personal property. It is to be confiscated by the Belgrade government.

Loud cheering and applause which marked virtually every appearance of the prosecution broke out when the sentences were pronounced yesterday.

The Serbian-born Mikhailovitch, who rose from the rank of colonel, which he held at the time of the Nazi invasion of his homeland, had received aid and support from the United States and Britain throughout the first few years of his fight against the enemy.

When King Peter broke with the Chetniks, however, the western Allies transferred their support from Mikhailovitch to Marshal Tito's Partisans.

But all he brought back was a thick coat of tan, he says he is feeling just fine, but never a fish which I hoped he would bring—the weather is just eighty-nine.

'Y' Camp Service To Honor Memory Of Fred L. Rentz

Memorial Service To Be Held At Summer Site Thursday Evening
Honoring Founder

Memory of Fred L. Rentz, founder of the present Y.M.C.A. summer camp, will be honored at a service to be held at the site Thursday evening beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The memorial has been planned to honor the man whose efforts made the modern camp for young boys possible. Mr. Rentz presented the "Y" with the 26-acre of land and donated six of the thirteen buildings to the association. His only stipulation in making the contribution was that 25 underprivileged boys be sent to the camp each year free of charge.

The "Y" has more than kept that promise. Each year close to 50 boys are treated to a week at the camp entirely free of any charge.

John P. Boyles, president of the association for the past four years, and a veteran of the movement in the city, will be in charge of the meeting.

Arnold Lewis, serving as counselor at the camp and in his seventh consecutive season at the summer site, will make the address representing the campers at the service.

Dr. Burr McKnight, pastor of the First Methodist church, and the minister of the late Fred L. Rentz, will deliver the eulogy.

Dr. G. S. Bennett will speak on behalf of the community and will give the closing prayer.

Parents of the boys who are at the camp at the present time are asked to attend the service. Also any friends of the campers, other Y.M.C.A. members, or friends of the founder are invited to the service.

SECRETARY PYRNES PRESENTS REPORT OF PEACE EFFORTS

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov had refused to agree on any discussion of the German and Austrian peace treaties, although they were on the agenda of the Paris meeting.

He said the council had made "no progress at all" on these problems. But, he added:

Verbal Combat Required
"Perhaps the time taken in discussion was not wholly lost, because our experience suggests that understandings, particularly with our Soviet friends, cannot be reached until we have gone the rounds of verbal combat, in which old complaints are repeated, past positions reaffirmed, differences accentuated and crises provoked."

Byrnes placed particular stress on the Soviet rejection of his proposal for a 25-year four-power pact for the maintenance of peace in Germany. With some sarcasm, he commented:

"I do not believe that the Soviets realize the doubts and suspicions which they have raised in the minds of those in other countries who want to be their friends by the aloofness, coolness and hostility with which they have received America's offer to guarantee jointly the continued disarmament of Germany."

"Had America been a party to such a guarantee after World War I, World War II would never have occurred, and the Soviet Union would never have been attacked and devastated."

Says Stalin Agreed
Byrnes further asserted his criticism of Moscow by asserting that Generalissimo Stalin had previously given his approval to the 25-year treaty idea last Christmas Eve.

Moreover, he declared that Moscow had asked for a study of demilitarization of all occupation zones in Germany but had taken an opposite viewpoint when it was suggested that such an investigation should include British complaints that the Russians were still operating German war plants. He said:

"Our military representative in Germany will this week be instructed to cooperate with any one or all of the three governments in essential administrative matters like finance, transportation, trade and industry."

"We will either secure economic cooperation between the zones or place the responsibility for the Potsdam agreement."

Byrnes belittled Russian demands for the demilitarization of Austria by removal of unwelcome residents to the U. S. zone. He recalled the historic American attitude toward political refugees and added that this attitude was "too precious" for the U. S. to consent to a mass expulsion from the U. S. zone.

SAYS A-BOMB NULLIFIES NAVY DEFENSE LINE

aircraft weapons—and would also weaken anti-submarine defenses. But at least it might assure that no more than one ship would be sunk by each single atom bomb of the present type, provided it were exploded at approximately 500 feet above the surface. No admiral has yet thought of a way of making sure, however, that the enemy will drop only one atom bomb at a time.

Right now, however, the admirals seem to be in less of a jam than they were before testable at Bikini.

Smokescreen Of Argument
Because all the ships were not sunk, the way was opened for the creation of a smoke screen argument about ship construction, ship formations, increased armored protection, the fatality rate among the goats, sheep and rats—and through this screen it becomes more and more difficult for the public to grasp the facts of atomic warfare and to realize that our present war machine is tied to antiquated modes of thought.

The last war was primarily an air war in the sense that neither in Europe nor the Pacific could we start on the road to victory until we gained control of the air.

The next war, if it is allowed to come, will be even more an air war, fought with airplanes flying thousands of miles at supersonic speeds and by self-propelled missiles carrying atomic bombs on atomic warheads or terrible bacteriological weapons.

It will be a war of annihilation against civilian populations and cities. If troops follow up such attacks they will be carried in giant airplanes or perhaps even in rockets equipped with braking devices to slow them down as they approach the earth from the stratosphere.

In such a war, our key cities could be destroyed while our fleet was waiting for the tide to turn so that it could put to sea.

The crucial question concerning the role of a navy in such a rocket-airplane war is whether it could defend our shores against attack or could launch an atomic onslaught against our enemy, and could do those things as effectively as other weapons at our disposal. The answer in both cases is "no"; a navy would be of no more use than a squadron of Genghis Khan's cavalry.

The Garsson interests, has indicated he would not testify under oath only if permitted to cross-examine other witnesses through his own counsel.

The Mead committee has refused to grant what it calls "special privileges." Chairman Mead (D) N. Y., charged in a letter to May that his failure to appear is tantamount to an admission that testimony against him is true.

The House minority called this statement an "unwarranted" accusation.

Testified In Secret
May testified in secret session, but not under oath, on June 4 concerning his handling of affairs of the Cumberland Lumber Co., a Garsson affiliate in Kentucky, and his contacts with War department officials.

Gellman confessed that he had been "misled by appearances" that he did not know of FBI records on the Garssons or of May's activities in behalf of the firms in which he was a co-owner.

He joined the committee in denouncing Benjamin P. Field's Washington Public Relations man, charged with attempting to "bribe" a committee member and a committee investigator in the name of Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of which Gellman was president.

The American investigator warned that future American policy on espionage might be "more severe," but said the Soviet agents will be returned in compliance with the Russian request.

He pointed out this action is directly opposite to Soviet policy in holding in closest confinement U. S. officers who stray accidentally into the Red zone of Berlin.

Keating hopes through a conference with Soviet officers to win the release of Capt. Harold Cobin, of Newark, N. J., and Lieut. George E. Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, who were nabbed in the Russian zone July 4.

Await Verdict In Russian Spy Trial In Seattle

SEATTLE, July 16.—(INS)—A jury of seven men and five women today will try to decide whether Nicolai G. Redin, Russian naval officer, is guilty of espionage-conspiracy, but, regardless of the decision, Lt. Redin's life is not at stake.

Nor, judging by a statement of Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black at the conclusion of arguments late yesterday, does Redin face the maximum penalty if found guilty of less serious charges.

Judge Black's statement was made after the jury had been sent out for the night.

The judge explained that the death penalty is provided for conspiracy only in wartime, and he interpreted the law to mean a "shooting war," not the present situation.

"There is no evidence that any conspiracy existed before October, 1945," he said.

No Army Of Aggression

The defense of this country is in the hands of the armed forces. To maintain that defense the armed forces must make plans and possess the power to put them into effect. Much of the power is made possible by legislation. If legislative implementation of the plans is denied, the power to defend is weakened materially.

One of the Army's problems to be solved by permissive legislation has to do with officer personnel. General Eisenhower, the chief of staff, says he can see no possibility in the next 15 or 20 years of the Army's going below 800,000 men, half of whom would be in the Air Forces. To direct such an Army, General Eisenhower estimates, would require 80,000 officers, of whom 50,000 would be regulars and the others temporary officers on active duty.

The legislative angle is that the officer personnel of the regular Army has been limited by law to 25,000. This limit must be doubled if the Army's plans are to become effective. Prompt approval of a bill to double the limit is sought by General Eisenhower.

The smooth sailing the bill has enjoyed in Congress to date attests the modesty of the Army's request. Certainly an Army of 800,000 men for a country of the size and importance of the United States is small in comparison to the forces maintained by Russia.

But at least it ought to serve as a handy rebuttal to charges that the United States is imperialistic and bent on world domination. Imperialists and world dominators carry much bigger sticks.

Recipe For Scarcity

A year ago, when the war ended, the American people were regaled from all sides with extravagant forecasts concerning the reconversion of industry and the production of consumer goods. According to the optimistic predictors, the country would soon be treated to an enormous flood of merchandise ranging from unlimited quantities of nylons to revolutionary new-era automobiles.

The truth has turned out to be the exact opposite. As Benjamin H. Namm, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, put it in a recent address: "I do not hesitate to state that there's less good, staple merchandise available at popular prices today than at any time in my experience as a retail merchant. There are less shirts, hosiery and men's clothing on retail shelves than at any time during the war years, when we were fighting two wars on widely separated fronts, maintaining an armed force of 12 million men and sending out vast quantities of goods under lend lease."

"We have governmental reports, of course, that our production is the 'highest in years'. These figures, however, are grossly misleading. They take no cognizance of quality deterioration, the disappearance of low-price goods, subsidies or the greatly decreased value of the dollar."

So long as business remains the slave of politics we will have an economy of scarcity instead of an economy of abundance.

Competition At Its Best

The United States was built by competitive private enterprise. Its industries, large or small, always were resourceful. The principal beneficiary was the public because it was the first to enjoy improvements.

Two outstanding industries in the nation have always competed in developing efficient fuels for the operation of the country's railroads and power units. Coal and oil have a fine record of achievement in serving the nation's transportation system with constantly improved fuel.

For years the railroads had to depend on cord wood. Then coal became available and outmoded wood. But competition arrived when oil was found to be a highly efficient fuel, as well as economical. For years the oil diesel has been a growing mode of power.

To meet the competition of oil burning engines, the coal industry has been developing a gas turbine engine to use powdered coal. This type of engine bids fair to become as famous as the oil burning diesel. What the oil and coal industries have accomplished by way of research from which industry and the public benefit is a good example of how competition brings achievement. Under private enterprise no industry is large enough to ignore a competitor, however small.

Loan Should Be Followed Up

There are aspects of the British loan that will never sit well with many Americans, especially those who recall how other vast loans have never been repaid, and never will be. But through final passage of this measure by the House of Representatives the United States has taken a step which, for vitally important reasons, it was imperatively called upon to take.

We have shown to Great Britain—and to other nations—that in the immense task of rebuilding a terribly war-damaged world America is taking a positive course from which it will not turn back. Restoration of Britain's economy is an essential move in the design which Uncle Sam must foster of starting world trade and co-operation on the difficult road toward recovery.

It should not be forgotten that, first and foremost, this loan is for the benefit of ourselves—for American industry and agriculture.

America's task cannot this time end with lending money, as it did in World War I. Now that the decision on the British loan has been registered, we must press for much needed trade adjustments so that all nations, including our own, may receive the eventual benefits which can be made possible through such an outpouring of the money of American taxpayers.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

America: The land where in one generation a family can rise from a plain cabin to a cabin place.

A recently designed plane will travel 500 miles an hour, prompting the query: "What's the hurry?"

Scientists say there are seven different kinds of fog. The administration seems to be in every one of them.

Now it is charged that the Russian observer at Bikini—yes, one was there—did not know what he saw until he heard from Moscow.

We read often nowadays of the politicians smearing one another. We don't know what they use as ammunition, but it isn't butter.

Henry Wallace says that strike publicity has hidden all the good news this year. No doubt, such good news as the Russian expansion in Europe and Asia.

WASHINGTON CALLING
by MARQUIS
CHILDS

Declares Government
Of Soviet Reactionary

WASHINGTON, July 16.—There are many reasons why Moscow should be angry over the articles written by Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times after 10 months spent in Soviet Russia. But there is one special reason for Russian irritation.

That is because Atkinson says clearly and firmly that the government of the Soviet Union today is a reactionary government. He hits directly at the illusion which many liberals throughout the world have continued to cling to. That is the illusion that the Moscow government must be for the best since it constantly protests that it intends to usher in the millennium for the toiling masses.

It is a hope that dies hard in a world dominated by power, on the one hand, and misery and wretchedness on the other. It is a hope that Americans, with the idealism which is so strong a part of the American character, are peculiarly prone to.

But only those who prefer to be blind can any longer cherish the belief that the government of the Kremlin is anything but reactionary and repressive. Their repressions abroad have become well known. Atkinson, in his articles, was talking about reaction and multifarious horrors.

One test he applied was in the arts, a field with which he is familiar through his years as a dramatic critic. He says that the Russian theater is dull, lifeless, unimaginative. This confirms what others have said.

Even in the department in which they excel—the ballet—they lack creativity. While they have lavish technical resources, they tend to fall back on such hackneyed pieces as Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake." This is in striking contrast with the ballet in this country, which has branched out in all sorts of experimentation—some of it silly, but some of it vigorous and alive.

In literature some good writing came out of the war, on the reportage level, such as Konstantin Simonov's "Days and Nights." But this is a long way short of the great tradition of Russian literature, which includes such figures as Tolstoy, Dostoevsky and Chekov, who wrote in spite of the repressions of the czars.

It seems to me that you can apply test after test to show that the regime in Russia is in reality reactionary. Take the position of women, long regarded as the test of the intentions of a society. From the extreme of postcard divorce and legalized abortion, the Soviet Union has swung to the other extreme of repressive laws on birth control and abortion that go along with rewards to mothers for producing many children. The technique used to stimulate population growth resembles in some ways the methods used by Hitler and Mussolini.

When Averell Harriman returned from more than two years as ambassador in Moscow, he reported that never at any time did he attend a function where women were present. Granted the stringencies of the war, nevertheless the atmosphere among the ruling clique seemed to be one of harem-like separation between men and women.

Women in the Soviet Union do, of course, the same work that men do; and during the war they fought side by side with men, showing the same courage and resistance. The most disturbing note in Atkinson's articles did not concern the war, nevertheless the atmosphere among the ruling clique seemed to be one of harem-like separation between men and women.

Women in the Soviet Union do, of course, the same work that men do; and during the war they fought side by side with men, showing the same courage and resistance. The most disturbing statement he makes is that the small group in the politburo, the governing power in Russia today, suffers from such a complex of suspicion and isolationism that it amounts to "group paranoia."

Hitler and the men around him suffered out of fear and suspicion from a paranoid compulsion to conquer the world. Their pathological suspicions would never let them accept peace on any other basis than total rule. If what Atkinson says of Russia is even partly true, then the world is indeed in a bad way, and any peace must be merely a pause between wars.

Reactionaries here in our own country will be gladdened by this newest confirmation of the flaws in the Russian system. They will probably ignore Atkinson's advice to his own countrymen: "In competition with Russia, which is a dynamic force in the world, we have to maintain our supremacy by growth that is also dynamic. We have to increase production and raise standards of living on a dynamic scale."

We have a chance such a rarely comes in the history of any people to show what a free democracy can achieve in the good life. Instead, at this moment we seem to be heading toward the old boom-to-bust cycle.

The State Police Say:

The curve of traffic accidents is rising alarmingly. After many stay-at-home months, motorists are taking to the highways. Now that restrictions have been removed, in greater numbers than ever before in history. To prevent a return to the tragic pre-war traffic toll of 40,000 deaths in a single year, cooperation of every one who walks or drives is necessary.

The Washington political players had the war patriotism to hide behind in accounting for food scarcities these few years past. And as some predicted, the peace is now worse than the war, with OPA pinch-hitting for the administration's lack of courage to clean the bases. Then only will the black market be benched.—Carrollton, Ohio, Journal.

Mr. Truman's statement that "our people are earning more money than ever before" put three auditors on my books but they couldn't find it.

The president confused sober statement with an old gag. . . . The gag ran "Me and my boss make five hundred a week between us. . . . He gets $475 and I get $25."

If "Our people are earning more money than ever before" some of "our people" haven't heard about it.

I know a school teacher who has been telling children for 20 years how Washington crossed the Delaware. She's got him across nearly 20 times and she still hasn't got a raise.

Letter carriers just got their first increase since the Postoffice department sold them their uniforms out of surplus Confederate stock.

Millions of fixed salary workers can testify that they aren't earning more money. . . . Maybe the president spoke from notes written on the back of an old letter from Phil Murray.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

As you will remember, they had that atomic bomb test out at Bikini a couple of weeks ago.

The radio was blaring all the details, generals and admirals were making speeches, scientists were long articles, there were eight column headlines and sound-photos all over the newspapers.

I was out in Brookfield when it happened. And, at 6 o'clock, I listened to the radio so that I might not miss a single word or sound of the world-shaking event.

At 6:10 a neighbor dropped in. "Come in," I said, "listen to the atomic bomb test on the radio."

"Haven't time," said the neighbor. "I just wanted to know if I could have some of your cherries that are going to taste. The missus would like to have some of 'em."

"Sure, go ahead," I replied, just as the boom boom of the bomb came over the air. "Hurry up, dear," called my wife at 6:12, "dinner is ready."

"I can't eat now," I hollered. "I'm listening to the atomic bomb broadcast."

"All right with me," she hollered back. "If you want to eat your roast beef cold."

"Roast beef?" I yelled, and off went the radio. I tried to talk to my wife about this tremendous event, but I couldn't get her to listen.

It seems that she had just discovered a nest of young robins in our blue bush, and these little birds were much too cute to bother about atomic bombs.

After dinner some more neighbors dropped in. They brought their nine-year-old son along.

We started to talk about the atomic bomb and its potential effects.

From Me To You

Come this Friday evening . . . and we do mean each and every one that is interested in War Surplus Material . . . to the Court House . . . The large court room will be the place. The GNCA has arranged to bring a chap to town who really knows the ins when it comes to buying War Surplus Goods. He will tell all those present just what the score is today. Here is an opportunity to find out exactly what chance you and this scribbler have when it comes to picking up some "goods."

All veterans who are in business . . . or contemplate going into business should make this meeting . . . Friday evening at eight o'clock . . . a must on their being away from home list. Several . . . in fact quite a few veterans have stopped in and asked about the purchase of War Surplus Material . . . how to make out proper forms and when the various sales would be held and where. Personally we have tried to get into the know but to date have struck nothing but a stone wall. We hope that our troubles will be over Friday evening.

So again folks . . . and we will mention it again and again . . . attend this meeting if you are at all interested in buying a truck, tractor, machine tools or maybe a jeep.

At one time . . . not so long ago . . . the women folks stood in line for hours to buy one single pair of hose. We were told last week by a woman whom we consider very much on her toes when it comes to finding bargains . . . that today hose are on sale and it is no trouble at all to step up to the counter and make a purchase . . . real silk too. So many women find it impossible to wear nylon because of some reaction causing a skin irritation . . . and prefer real honest-to-goodness silk. The hose were three ninety-five.

But if you ever want to sell merchandise quick . . . just spread around that the item is scarce . . . no matter what it is there will be hundreds of people wanting to buy. We feel mighty sorry for the folks who have twenty- or thirty pounds of butter on hand. It does change in taste with age. But then again . . . this is a good old world and we the people make most of the troubles that we complain about. Some of "our people" are earning more money than ever before . . . Others are eatin' less than ever before.

THE FAMOUS NORTHWEST ORDINANCE

The people of the thirteen original States were occupying land which had harbors on the Atlantic Ocean or upon Bays like the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays, which may be considered part of the Atlantic Ocean. These people derived their income, principally, from fishing, agriculture and trade in ships and their principal exports were tobacco and cotton from the Southern Colonies.

The fact that this land was made by the Proclamation of Great Britain of 1763 as Crown land did not deter the colonists, but the question as to who was going to own this land, Great Britain or the Colonies, in the event the Colonies won the War, caused the representatives of Rhode Island, Maryland and Delaware to refuse to sign the Articles of Confederation. This objection was overcome by the representatives of the States of New York and Virginia, disclaiming all their rights to land beyond their colonial boundaries, but in 1781 all of the States had agreed to the Confederation.

The Treaty of Peace was signed by the representatives of Great Britain and the Colonies in 1783 due to the work of John Jay, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams. Great Britain very unwillingly agreed, however, that in that Treaty the United States should own all the land from the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi River, bounded on the South by the line drawn from the Southern boundary of Georgia, and the right given to the people of the States to fish in the Atlantic Ocean. When the treaty was finally signed, all obstacles were removed.

The population of land seekers broke through to the west with a rush. It is easy to understand why this exodus from thirteen States took place. Ownership of the land meant to the people of the States great family estates, especially those people from the Southern States, where they had seen the first crop of accumulated great family fortunes.

Of course, at first, there was no method by which the government of the new nation could make orderly sale of this land and this resulted in two Committees being appointed by Congress to report on this question of government land sales of the acquired territory. Thomas Jefferson was made chairman of both of these Committees. The draft of this land policy, "The Land Ordinance of Jefferson" and was reported in 1784. This land ordinance was adopted by Congress in 1785, and after various amendments finally became the famous Ordinance of 1787. The original Ordinance is one of the great pieces of legislation for its contained fundamentals of the American land system, which with the modifications that experience introduced, has proven to be permanently workable for more than one hundred fifty years. It is known in history as the Northwest Ordinance, the primary feature of which was the orderly survey of the land in advance of sale.

In the next place the township was taken as a unit, and its size was fixed at 36 miles square. Provision was then made for the sale of townships alternately entire and by sections of one mile square, or six hundred forty acres each. In every township a section was reserved for educational purposes; that is, the land was to be disposed of, and the proceeds used for the development of public schools in that region. Finally the United States reserved four sections in the center of each township to be disposed of at a later time.

And this Ordinance was the basis of the disposal not only of land to the settlers, but provided for a method of financing the great Western railroads.

The stimulus which aroused Congress to finally adopt this Ordinance seems to have come from the Ohio Company. The Ohio Company of Associates was made up of veterans of the Revolution who were looking for homes in the West and of other persons who were willing to support a worthy cause by a subscription which might turn out to be a good investment.

This company had purchased one million acres at sixty-six cents an acre, obtaining the privilege of paying at least a portion in Certificates of Revolutionary indebtedness, some of which were worth about twelve and one-half cents on the dollar. Only a little calculation is required to show that they paid about nine cents an acre for their million acres.

Following that, the Scioto Associates purchased five million acres of land.

This new Ordinance provided that a Governor and three judges be appointed who, along with their other functions, were to select such laws as they thought best from the statute books of all the States.

The second stage of self-government was to be reached when the population contained five thousand free men of age. Then the people were to have a representative legislature with the privilege of making their own laws.

Provision was made for dividing the whole region from three to five districts at the final stage of government was reached when any of these districts had sixty thousand free inhabitants, for it might then establish its own Constitution and government and be admitted to the Union on equal terms with the original States.

Criminal Prosecution On Profiteering Unlikely
Current Investigation Held Only Fact-Finding
Sports Equipment Shortage Will Last Some Time

(Special to Central Press)
WASHINGTON, July 16.—Capitol Hill insiders are willing to bet that the current war profiteering investigation by the committee headed by Senator James Mead (D) of New York will not develop facts sufficient to warrant criminal prosecution.

Before the start of open hearings—which brought the name of Rep. "Aldy" May (D) of Kentucky, House military affairs committee chairman, into the proceedings—the Mead committee went over the whole case in private sessions. Senator Mead declared that the activities of the three Illinois companies and their subsidiaries was "war profiteering at its worst." Those who are supposed to be "in the know," however, say that nothing was found which would support a criminal indictment.

It was easy to understand the indignation of senators and congressmen when they learned that war department officials had been recording their telephone conversations on behalf of constituents or friends looking for war contracts.

Most congressmen had been on the telephone at one time or another for this purpose. "Aldy" May didn't make the only congressional telephone call to the sprawling war department in the hectic days when billions were being spent for defense.

There is said to be a new today for the outdoors-type vacationist, who wants to fish, go hunting, play golf, tennis or baseball during his vacation this year.

There will be slim pickings in sports equipment for the remainder of the year because of the wave of strikes which interrupted the reconversion program this spring.

Most sports supplies require steel in their construction. Steel is still on the shortage list as far as locating stocks for recreational purposes is concerned.

Among the other critical items which would ordinarily go into sports equipment are bamboo for fishing poles, lead for ammunition, natural rubber for golf balls and leather for footballs.

Although the news for this year is bad, the government believes that by next summer there ought to be complete and adequate stocks in sports supply stores.

Which doesn't help the 1946 vacationer much but it's something to look forward to anyway.

Food Subsidies Withdrawn
The withdrawal of nearly a billion and a half dollars in federal food subsidies with the expiration of OPA gives farmers what agricultural observers consider a legitimate demand for somewhat higher prices on such farm items as milk, butter, cream, beef and the like.

Farm sources point out that, in many cases, the government had promised increased prices to farmers in the event that price controls were removed.

Some of these increases have already been applied, particularly on milk prices.

Farm officials in Washington believe that the increases will not be large. There is belief that they will result in the availability of more early products and milk than the consumer has received in many months.

More Meat Now
This was borne out by the rush of cattle to market in Chicago when prices first climbed above OPA ceilings. This rush will mean that Mr. and Mrs. America will get more steaks, roasts and chops—at higher prices.

Cattle dealers argue that retail meat prices will slacken off as the supply catches up with the tremendous demand for these products.

Best bet for housewives: Watch your butcher shop for the expected flood of meat in the weeks just ahead with all types of cuts—high and low grade—in the butchers' coolers.

With building of houses being resumed, an old hazard to safety and citizenship of many children is returning. You know how alluring the sandle, lumber and partially erected building are to a tot or run-around child. If you were the owner or builder of the house you also would know how destructive children can be to the building materials. Besides, anyone should know how perilous is the play of children in and around a building under construction.

Of course, most physical cuts and bruises can be repaired, but the moral injury to children allowed to trespass unrestrainedly on such private property may be beyond repair.

While I was discussing this matter some years ago at a public forum an eminent educator present raised the objection: "But see the education a child gets from such play." To which I replied, "He also might get a kind of educational experience, as in certain skills and knowledge, at learning to snatch goods clandestinely from a store, pick a lock or rob a bank."

We parents are not merely interested in the building of houses.

What People Say

(By International News Service)
METZ, France—Former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, at Bastille Day ceremonies, "Europe has almost perished twice. It was saved both by itself and by the American generals who ran to its aid. Never have we more urgently needed a powerful country, and it is a powerful France that we need."

WASHINGTON—Sen. Arthur Capper (R) Kan., his 81st birthday, gave a theory that "because the rest of the world has different ideas about things" America should change. "If that idea is right then George Washington was wrong and Benedict Arnold was right."

NEW YORK—Robert R. Wason, president of National Association of Manufacturers, blames OPA for loss of hundred million man-days industrial production in strikes since V-J Day. "If OPA had agreed before strikes were called, instead of after, to allow price adjustments actually made later, then disastrous walkouts might have been avoided."

WASHINGTON—Joseph M. Stack, Veterans of Foreign Wars commander-in-chief: "The veteran is now being forced to waste his GI housing loan guarantee on jerry-built homes costing twice their value."

Vandenberg To Tell Why Soviet Rejected American Treaty Plan

PARIS July 16.—(INS)—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg this week will give the U. S. Senate his version of why Russia rejected the American treaty plan and is expected to declare:

"The crime that we are accused of in Germany is that we oppose communizing the entire country."

(In Washington, Vandenberg said he would make the speech to the Senate tomorrow.)

The Michigan Republican, whom the Soviets call "Mr. Byrnes' Munich-man," because of his opposition to Communism, already had his speech prepared before he flew from Paris to Washington at the end of the big four conference.

Points Included
Vandenberg, who gave Secretary of State Byrnes valuable aid during the Paris meeting, has a speech prepared including these points:

1. An explanation of the plan for governing Trieste as a "free territory."
2. Discussion of the complicated settlement of Italian reparations payments to Russia.

3. Reasons for postponing for a year the disposition of the Italian colonies.

4. Exposition of the 25-year American treaty proposal.

On the latter point Vandenberg will give what he believes to be the inside story of why Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has refused to approve the American treaty plan.

He is expected to charge that the Soviets have no desire to end military occupation, that they intend to continue it for forty years, and that their plan undermines confidence in the United Nations.

Vandenberg feels that it is the business of the U. N. to keep the peace and that any prolonged military occupation would amount to a charge that the U. N. peace machinery is inadequate.

HOUSE REJECTS

SENATE-PASSED

SILVER INCREASE

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—The House Monday rejected a senate-passed silver price increase and voted to send the controversial question to senate-house conference.

The senate agreed Saturday to raise the price of silver from the present 71.11 cents an ounce to 96.3 cents an ounce and to authorize Industrial purchase of treasury silver stocks.

On the motion of Rep. Spence (D-Ky.), the house refused to concur in the senate action, thus referring the legislation to conference.

Taft Foresees OPA

Veto By Truman

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), expressed in the senate Monday his belief that President Truman will veto the OPA extension bill and that such action would mean the end of price controls.

Taft suggested that if Mr. Truman vetoes the bill congress should enact legislation continuing rent controls and restricting the use of government subsidies.

The Ohioan said that the government appropriations bill authorizes more than two billion dollars for subsidies but pointed out that if the OPA fails to become law there will be no need for most of the money.

Truman Signs British Loan

Claims Huge Loan Major Step Towards Reviving And Expanding World Trade

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—President Truman signed the three billion 750 million British loan agreement Monday afternoon and hailed it as "a major step in carrying out our program for reviving and expanding international trade."

The chief executive affixed his signature to the congressional measure in the presence of the British ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, Chief Justice Fred Vinson, and a group of congressional and government leaders.

Mr. Truman used 26 different pens in signing the bill, and gave each of the officials present a pen each after as a memento of the ceremony.

Serves Our Interest
The President said: "The loan serves our immediate and long range interests by helping to restore world trade. At the same time it enables Great Britain to cooperate in creating a pattern of mutually beneficial economic relations among the nations of the world."

"It goes far to remove the danger of rival and antagonistic economic blocs. No one should think that this agreement between the United States and Great Britain is directed against any other country. It is not. The system of trade we seek is open on the same fair terms to all the United Nations. While considerations of broad self interest underlie our action, this does not mean that we have forgotten the circumstances which gave rise to Britain's present problems. It is fortunate and gratifying that this action both serves our own interests and helps to solve the problems which Britain faces as the direct consequences of having devoted human, spiritual, and material resources so fully to the common cause."

File Exceptions To Toll Bridge Purchase Ban

HARRISBURG, July 16.—(INS)—Exceptions to Judge Robert E. Woodside's decision nullifying the state's toll bridge purchase act were on file today with the Dauphin county court.

The protests were filed by Deputy Attorney General H. F. Stambaugh on behalf of Secretary of Highways Ray F. Smock, State Treasurer Ramsey S. Black and Auditor General G. Harold Wagner.

Woodside indicated the exceptions would be overruled early this week, clearing the way for the commonwealth's appeal to the state supreme court. The appeal was ordered by Gov. Edward Martin.

Woodside's ruling invalidated the toll bridge acquisition bill passed by the general assembly in 1943.

Woodside froze the motor license fund against use for the bridge purchases, pointing out that a constitutional amendment specifically limited use of the money to highway maintenance and construction.

The equity proceedings were initiated by the Peoples' Bridge company, owner of a span at Harrisburg.

Rotarians Hear Speakers Monday

Nate Schmid Of Toledo And Michel Giulio Of Paris Are Heard Monday Noon

New Castle Rotary club had the privilege of hearing two speakers at their noon luncheon meeting in The Castleton, Monday, when they were addressed by Nate Schmid of Toledo, manager of the Wilson Spice company, and Michel Giulio of Paris, France. Mr. Schmid gave an interesting and humorous talk on "The Psychology of Personality."

Mr. Giulio, who is representing a firm engaged in the bearing business, and is currently visiting the plant of the Johnson Bronze company, was the guest of Al Teshan, export manager for the company.

He stated that conditions were somewhat better in France today, than they were at the close of the war, but that the problem of distribution is still a difficult one due to the fact that virtually all of France's locomotives and rolling stock was destroyed in the war, and that there are few trucks, with gasoline being a scarce article.

He stated that it costs between 30,000 and 40,000 francs a week to live well in France, and that only the well-to-do are able to get along well. Much of what one buys comes from the black market. A suit of clothes costs between 20,000 and 30,000 francs, and a pair of shoes 10,000 francs.

Around Hollywood

By JOHN TODD
(N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD July 16.—Rita Hayworth is looking forward to her coming vacation like she never looked forward to one before. Columbia's beautiful queen is tired. For six months now she's been working in "Down to Earth" and she still has a month to go.

Said Rita: "I've worked so hard it seems like three years. I haven't made any definite vacation plans. What I'm going to do when I finish the picture is to rest completely for a week. Then on the spur of the moment I'll decide where I'm going. I've been promised at least two months and I may get three. My next picture, a comedy, probably won't start until November."

Rita, who's done some of her most difficult dancing for "Down to Earth", says there'll be neither dancing nor singing in her next. "That'll give me a break."

There are three things Rita plans to do a lot of on her vacation, play tennis, swim and sit in the sun. All of them have been barred since she started the picture for fear she'd get tanned. Technicolor cameras show up tan as a horrible red.

"I've missed sitting in the sun more than anything," Rita said. "But, Rebecca (her cute little daughter) and I have at last got settled in our new home and this time it's permanent."

Rita laughed because she's been doing some moving about in the last six months. Just after "Down to Earth" started, Rita was evicted from her big Brentwood place. Then she bought a small home at the outskirts of Brentwood, but it was too small and the noise from a main highway in back kept Rebecca awake. Last week she moved into a new Brentwood place, which has everything she wants—except a phone. That hasn't been installed yet.

It looks like Dick Powell is really determined to become one of the screen's toughest guys. He started this new career in "Farewell, My Lovely." He was an even tougher guy in "Cornered." He's just begun "Johnny O'Clock" for Jem productions. He plays a tough gambler. How tough can a guy get, anyhow?

PAINTING COUNTRY BUNGALOW

"We are building a new bungalow-style house in the country. The trim in all of the rooms will be painted white. The floors are of oak. Shall I varnish the floors before adding the shellac? Should my doors be the color of my floors or solid white?"

Answer: Natural finish on the floors is becoming more and more popular, especially if the surface is good. Yours being a new house with new boards in your flooring, will be ideal for this treatment.

Mere oiling and waxing is sufficient but, if you prefer, a shellac finish may be applied. Occasionally thereafter the floor should be gone over with a waxed mop. Do not use water.

In cases where the wood must be treated with filler, it should be stained and painted for only a beautiful floor of flawless wood should be exposed. If stain is used, give a shellac finish which should be cleaned and polished with floor wax and a mop. White doors will, I think, be more attractive with your white woodwork.

Question: On hearing of the birth of an out of town acquaintance's baby, is it necessary for me to send my congratulations?

Answer: When the new arrival belongs to a friend, it is customary to call on the mother and present a gift to the child. If you live too far to make a personal call, you may send a gift with your visiting card and your "congratulations" written thereon. If you do not wish to send a gift, a letter of congratulation will be sufficient in the case of a mere acquaintance.

Present your problems to Miss Markel who will promptly mail personal replies to questions from readers enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

tions In Divorce Case Of Night
Club Singer Wife

HOLLYWOOD, July 16.—(INS)—Errol Flynn and George Raft squirmed Night Club Singer Patricia Lee Marquis to beach parties and night clubs while he was in the navy overseas, Richard Marquis charged in an amended cross-complaint on file today in his wife's divorce action.

Additionally, Marquis charged that his wife bore Raft's bodyguard, Mack Gray, a "stillborn child."

Marquis' complaint stated when he came home from the navy Dec. 1, 1945, his wife told him she was in love with Gray and had borne the lifeless child Sept. 29, 1944.

In her original divorce petition, Mrs. Marquis had accused her husband of "extreme mental cruelty" from the time he came home until their separation Feb. 1, 1946, their third wedding anniversary.

At a deposition hearing, Mrs. Marquis denied all her husband's allegations.

In a court hearing 10 days ago, Mrs. Marquis obtained monthly temporary alimony of $90 as an expectant mother.

Marquis is an "apprentice" for a Santa Barbara title and guaranty firm, earning $120 a month and receiving "GI Bill of Rights" assistance.

Canada Starts
Purge To Banish
Subversive Group

OTTAWA, July 16.—(INS)—Canada threw all its law enforcement agencies today into a purge of civil servants with a "first loyalty" to Russia and other subversive elements to halt the flow of top secret information overseas.

High government officials revealed that the widespread cleanup is under way after a royal investigation commission reported that the Soviets are operating an 11-year-old "fifth column" in Canada.

The commission disclosed that important information of the Canadian, United States and British governments was transmitted to Russia and that the spy ring may still be at work seeking postwar defense secrets.

Soviet agents were accused of having obtained samples of uranium 235 and 233, essential elements of the atom bomb, and flying them to Russia.

The commission said a great deal of secret information from a number of Canadian departments and agencies was regularly finding its way to Russia. The report added:

"The evidence indicates there were agents working along the same lines in the United States, Great Britain and elsewhere."

"The commission in its 250,000-word final report described how the Russians, by acquiring a piece of information in Canada and other pieces in the United States and Britain, could build up a very large body of data."

Blames Roosevelt
Order For German
Sub War Campaign

NUERNBERG, July 16.—(INS)—Counsel for Admiral Karl Doenitz, former commander in chief of the German navy, attempted today to justify the Nazis' unrestrained submarine warfare by President Roosevelt's order to "shoot on sight."

The counsel, Capt. Otto Kramshuehler, former judge advocate of the German fleet, also cited other allied naval measures to excuse the Nazi "wolf-pack" attacks on neutral merchantmen before the allied war crimes tribunal.

Kramshuehler told the court he spoke in the name of thousands of German seamen "who believed they were serving a good cause and do not deserve to be branded by history as pirates and murderers."

Doenitz' counsel said United States merchant vessels were wholly exempt from German naval measures in the early phase of World War Two. The policy changed, he added, when, in addition to many unneutral acts of the past, the U. S. Navy was ordered to protect British supply lines.

James, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buchman of Nanticoke, and grandson of Mrs. Sally Deegan of East Cherry street, is confined to the hospital in Meadville. The Buchman family were visiting at the home of Mrs. Buchman's sister, Mrs. Hugh Stewart, 1032 South Mill street.

The Buchman and Stewart families went on Sunday to visit the Pymatungum dam. While watching the large amount of fish in the water in that location, the boy was struck by the side of an automobile and sustained head, face and body injuries. The car was full of people, but did not stop, although aware of the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Buchman and their son, escorted by two ex-soldiers in a jeep, endeavored in vain to find a doctor, finally going to Meadville hospital, where James was given medical attention. It was necessary to stitch a cut lip.

Army Will Teach
Men How To Cook

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Army has sent 629 officers and men to school to learn how to cook, and it was disclosed meanwhile that I. Q. requirements have been raised for Army cooks and mess sergeants. Major E. J. Byrne, head of the new food service branch of the Quartermaster Corps which is operating the schools at nine forts, promised that in the future Army chow will be more tasty. There is, he said, nothing wrong with Army food—"it's the way it's cooked."

At the new food service schools, which replace what were known as "cooks and bakers schools" of the First World War and "bakers and cooks schools" of the Second World War, students will learn the latest scientific principles of food preparation and how to do it themselves.

STRAWBERRY BEDS

Where strawberry growers plan to carry over this year's fruiting bed for a second crop next year, an intensive cultural program should start soon after this year's harvest.

Most of the plants which have just fruited should be destroyed with just enough of the plants saved to produce a full-matted row of new runners during the remainder of the season.

In good stands of plants, mow the tops high and rake off the mulch and leaves. Mix 200 to 300 pounds of nitrate of soda or an equivalent amount of some other nitrogenous fertilizer with 300 to 400 pounds of superphosphate or a mixed fertilizer, such as 0-12-6. This mixture is sufficient for an acre. An equivalent amount of a complete fertilizer high in nitrogen may be used.

After applying the fertilizer over the plants, growers should use a narrow or cultivator to dig both the rows and the area between the rows. Many plants will be destroyed and the ground loosened around those remaining. The cultivator may be used to narrow the rows down to eight to 12 inches. A hand hoe can be used to dress up the patch, which can be handled the rest of the season the same as a new planting.

A publication, "Growing Strawberries in Pennsylvania," is available at the Agricultural Extension Office, No. 206 Post Office Building, New Castle. This gives further information on strawberry culture.

EROSION CONTROL LAND
INSURANCE

Farmers in Lawrence County who have contour-stripped their farms have insured their land against water and soil losses.

Recent heavy rains have demonstrated the worth of contour operations where rows are on the level and retard the flow of surface run-off, rather than encourage this off and erosion as happens where rows run up and down grade to conform to usual field patterns.

Miniature terraces made by working and fitting the land across the slope hold the rainfall. The soil stays where it does the farmer most good—on his fields. Much of the extra water is stored in the sub-soil and helps make a crop later when rainfall may be lacking.

THE PARENT
PROBLEM

terested in the skills and knowledge a child acquires. Always, we want to keep in mind the attitudes he is developing in relation to other persons and their rights as he learns.

Of course, many children run wild in almost any neighborhood, and their parents have not restrained them adequately nor properly checked as to their whereabouts.

Entreaty to Parents
Let me entreat parents who really do try to guide their children toward development of good citizenship as follows: If there is a building under construction in your neighborhood, make very clear to your child that he shall not be in or about this construction at any time unless accompanied by you or another responsible adult.

To afford this child good example, he should know you have yourself, or your substitute has the owner's or builder's permission to be on the property.

See to it, moreover, that your child tampers with nothing about this property nor plays games of chase and the like there. Furthermore, you should make such personal check as to be sure your child has obeyed your instruction not to trespass on the property.

Also, when you go strolling through woods and fields, you should set a good example in citizenship and guide your children in being good citizens. Leaving gates and barways open, breaking down fences, tramping upon grass and grain and other crops, plucking fruit, or injuring shrubs and trees belong to some other person or the public is manifestly, bad citizenship.

Likewise, we parents need to exercise ourselves and our children in good citizenship as we picnic and lunch with them in the parks and by the roadside, or elsewhere out of doors. My new bulletin, "Teaching Child Care of Property" may be of help. Write for it by writing to me at 235 East 45th street, New York, N. Y.

POISON IVY
Any one who has had the experience of being poisoned with ivy will tell you about real misery.

A few hours after the plant has been handled, the skin becomes red and hot. Blisters form and the itching and burning are terrific.

A large number of people suffer from ivy poisoning every summer. The best remedy is prevention.

The leaves of poison ivy are arranged in threes like a trident or spear. They will surely spear you if you give them a chance.

If you are even suspicious of a vine or bush, do not touch it. When going into fields or woods or even into a garden, look around carefully for three leaved plants.

People who go into the country for a picnic are the usual victims. Poison ivy will get you if you don't watch out.

Film is plentiful again and this is summer—the best time in the year for picture taking.

But these pictures should be more than mere records of how your wife looked on the day you had the picnic at McConnell's Mills, or of your father and mother standing like a couple of hollyhocks beside the house on the day of their Golden Wedding anniversary.

Take some time with them—take pains to find out what exposure would be best for the day, the subject, and the sort of film you're using. Find more interesting ways of arranging your subjects and more interesting subjects to use. Find out what you can do with filters if you are photographing a sailboat on Lake Erie on a day when the sky is full of little clouds that look like the whitecaps on the water.

The library is well equipped with books which can help you with some of your problems, and which can show you how extensive the range of amateur photography really is.

On the list are:

"This is Photography" by T. H. Miller; "Outdoor Photography" by Samuel Grison; "Finding New Subjects for Your Camera," by Jacob Deschin; "The Complete Photographer" by Willard D. Morgan; "Miniature Camera Technique," Fenwick G. Small; "Photo Tricks and Effects" by Jacob Deschin; "The Leica Manual" by W. D. Morgan; "Photographer's Rule Book" by Larry June; "Photographic Lenses and Shutters" by Richard W. St. Clair; "Photographing Action" by Victor De Palma; "Photographing in Color" by Paul Outerbridge; "Flash Photography" by Rus Arnold; "Graphic Graflex Photography" by Willard D. Morgan; "Indoor Photography" by Hillary G. Bailey; "Darkroom Handbook and Formulae" by Morris Germain; "Home Portraiture and Make-Up" by Maurice Seymour; "Making Amateur Photography Pay" by A. J. CLAVELLI..... Presents — Chlorozif Deodorant KILLS ODORS

BY REMOVING THEIR CAUSE . . . THAT'S WHY IT HAS THE GREATEST EFFECT

CAUSE OF ODORS

BACTERIAL FERMENTATION

In toilets, locker rooms, etc., germs are constantly acting upon small living organisms and organic matter, causing them to ferment and produce offensive odors.

CHEMICAL DECOMPOSITION

In body excretions of humans and animals, chemicals such as ammonia, uric acid, etc., change their form and decompose. In this process they give off exceedingly objectionable odors.

ITS EFFECT

This product effectively kills germ odors. It also prevents germ odors from further fermentation and causing more odors, when surfaces are thoroughly wetted.

ITS EFFECT

Active vapors of this deodorant combine with these chemicals, changing them to harmless new substances WITHOUT ODOR. It does not disguise these odors—it removes them by changing their chemical structure.

HOW TO USE

TO PREVENT GERM ODORS AND BACTERIA ODORS

Dilute 1 to 7 and mop often around germ-infected surfaces of toilets, drains, floors. Most effective used alone. Never dilute with soap or cleaning solution.

TO PREVENT ODORS FROM CHEMICAL DECOMPOSITION

Dilute 1 to 7 and spray once a day wherever chemical decomposition is taking place. Make sure all surfaces are thoroughly wetted. Cease spraying when perfume odor becomes noticeable. This mild perfume is used only as an indicator and disappears after spraying, leaving absolutely NO odor.

1 to 7 Solution—KILLS

Toilet odors, perspiration odors, chemical odors, putrefactive odors, dead rat, etc., cooking odors.

For toilet rooms, class rooms, locker rooms, shower rooms, sinks and drains, chemical toilets, animal cages, cuspidors.

USES Places 451 In Jobs In June; Need More Openings

Veteran Employment Still Below Satisfactory Level, Manager States

Although 451 placements were made by the local office of the U. S. Employment Service during June, the job shortage for returning veterans is still acute, stated U.S.E.S. Manager George R. Gettings this morning.

Two thousand eight hundred veterans are now receiving servicemen's compensation, according to the files of the New Castle office. The larger part of these men are not skilled, or have skills which cannot be used in local industries. Many of the men went into service immediately after graduation.

Because of the scarcity of job openings, many 17 and 18-year-old boys just graduating from high school now are entering service. Job openings for women, however, are more numerous, especially for factory and office work. Some openings for domestics are still available.

Of the 451 who were placed in jobs in June, 87 were women, and 171 were veterans of World War II.

Mail Questionnaires To South Side Folks

G. C. Snyder, president of the South Side Board of Trade, reports much interest and favorable comment by South Side residents relative to the board's effort to have one of the leading downtown banks open a branch bank in South New Castle.

Questionnaires were mailed out to South Side residents yesterday to make possible the compiling of the necessary data for the information of the interested downtown banks.

Mr. Snyder further states that the dollar volume of business by South Side commercial interests has increased by leaps and bounds, and considers the opening of a branch bank in the South Side as being practical and desirable, as well as meeting the demands of the times.

City Taking Title To Dana Property

During City Council session conducted Monday in Council chambers, City Clerk Jack H. Fritz was delegated by resolution presented by Streets Director James Gibson and passed unanimously, to accept title for the Dana property and to draw a city check for $29,000 to D. H. Long, representing the Dana estate. One thousand dollars of the purchase price ($30,000) was paid to the late Attorney Dana.

The city now owns the property and will take possession within 30 days, and it is anticipated that the foundation for a new city building will be started this fall.

The property is located at the corner of North Jefferson and Grant streets.

German Prisoners In British Zones To Be Released

MUENSTER, Germany, July 16.—Many thousands of German SS and SA officers and civilians previously in automatic arrest categories will be released from internment camps in the British zone within the next few weeks.

Some of those to be freed have been held as long as 15 months without trial. No potential war criminals will be released and the official decision to expedite releases was due to the distaste for holding men against whom no charge had been made and probably never would be made.

Heretofore, only a few hundred, most of them invalids, have been released each week. Under the new system, nearly half of the 66,000 interned will be freed, reportedly at the rate of 3,000 a month.

Gavrilu Prinzip, whose rash act in shooting the Archduke of Austria and his wife, really precipitated the World War I, died shortly after being arrested.

Food Shortages Will Exist For Several Years

President Says Some Countries Will Take One To Three Years
To Be Self-Sustaining

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—President Truman said Monday that it will take from one to three years before countries with food shortages can get back to a self-sustaining basis.

The chief executive said that the United States must continue to help feed these European and Asiatic nations until they are able to produce a sufficiency of their own food.

Mr. Truman spoke informally to a group of youngsters attending the youth conference on famine relief in the east wing of the White House Monday morning.

He said: "It is going to take another year or two—maybe three—before those countries can get back on a production basis so that they can even contribute to their own support."

"We are going to help them all we can with machinery and tools and the wherewithal to raise food, but it will be some time before those destroyed countries can get back on a basis where they can feed themselves."

The president told the conference that the nation's youth can do a great deal toward helping conserve food to be sent abroad.

He said "it is up to you young people to make a contribution to the feeding and the care of the people who cannot feed and care for themselves."

Two-Way Radio For State Police Cars In State

HARRISBURG, July 16.—Bell Telephone Company was awarded a contract for installation of a two-way radio communication system in Pennsylvania State Police cruiser cars, it was announced by the Department of Property and Supplies. The bid was $296,950 for the installation and two-year service of equipment.

The system, which will enable a state policeman to keep in constant telephonic communication with his headquarters regardless of where he is on the highways, will be installed in 250 police vehicles. There will be a corresponding number of stationary equipment at barracks and squadron headquarters.

Col. C. M. Wilhelm, police commissioner, calls the new installations an advance in police communications that will aid greatly in crime prevention and detection.

—that's GAS COOKERY!

Yes, the modern Gas Range has more features of cleanliness than any other cooking method. Here's why—

- 1 The clean blue flame of the modern Gas burner leaves no residue—actually scours the bottoms of pans with heat.
- 2 Broiling with the modern Gas Range is truly smokeless broiling. The live Gas flame consumes the sooty particles of fat as they are given off by the meat.
- 3 Gas heat is instantly controllable—when food reaches a boil, the heat can be reduced immediately to prevent the food from boiling over.
- 4 The modern Gas Range is the easiest of all to keep clean. The burners are clog-proof and rust-resistant. If food is spilled on them, they can be removed in a jiffy and cleaned without trouble or danger.

NEW WAGE OFFENSIVE

CHICAGO, July 15.—(INS)—Industry and business were warned today by Walter Reuther, president of the powerful CIO United Automobile Workers union, that unless living costs drop organized labor will begin a new offensive on the wage front.

Reuther, who spoke yesterday before 1,500 UAW members in suburban Cicero, emphasized that new wage demands would be the last resort.

He declared that buyers' strikes would be the first step toward forcing stabilization.

The rally was a preview of a nation-wide series of mass meetings scheduled for today. Reuther said the meetings will be attended by 800,000 UAW members.

Freeman Says May Interceded In Capitol Deals

Munitions Expediter Claims May Was Go-Between At War Department Transactions

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Joseph F. Freeman, who collected $184,000 in four years as Washington "expediter" for a munitions combine under senate investigation, testified Monday that Rep. Andrew J. May (D) Ky., always "cooperated" when he was asked to intercede at the war department.

Freeman, Washington representative for Erie Basin Metal Products Co. and Batavia Metal Products Co., told the Mead committee he contacted the house military chairman "six or eight times." "It might have been more," the grey-haired witness testified in a voice which at times was barely audible.

He always interceded when you asked him to?" asked George Meader, chief counsel for the committee. "I believe that's right," Freeman replied.

"Did you ask anyone else to intercede for you?"

"No." Chairman Mead (D) N. Y., who announced before calling Freeman that the committee's "invitation" to May to appear as a witness still stands and that the committee has postponed a decision on subpoenaing the congressman, brought out Freeman's earnings from 1941 through 1944.

Income Zooms
Freeman's testimony then revealed that his income as a Washington business representative zoomed from $5,800 in 1941, before he went to work for the Erie Basin-Batavia owners, to $70,000 in 1944.

The witness said that in 1942 he received $16,000 from Erie Basin, $9,000 from Dr. Henry M. Garsson, an official of the two companies, and $6,000 from the Atlas Carbon Co., a former client.

In 1943, Freeman disclosed, he was paid $22,500 by Erie Basin in salary, $6,300 by Atlas and $7,500 in "expenses" from Erie Basin.

The peak year of 1944, Freeman said he received $22,500 from Erie Basin, $25,000 from Batavia, $15,000 from the U. S. Wind Engine Co., a Garsson subsidiary, plus $75,000 expenses.

Freeman testified that he had "nothing to do with contracts, advance payments for 'E' awards"—matters on which it has been testified that May or the Garssons brought pressure on the war department.

He told the committee that Murray Garsson, a brother of Henry now in Cuba, initially offered him $25,000 a year as Erie Basin's Washington representative. Later, he said, the $7,500 expense allowance was added.

He said he talked with Rep. May on the telephone and visited the congressman in his office two or three times.

The witness, under questioning, said he could not recall any instance when May visited him in the Erie Basin-Batavia Washington office on Thomas Circle.

Mead asked the witness to "think hard and long and remember that that you are under oath" in answering the question regard May's appearance at Freeman's office.

Freeman paused and finally replied in the negative.

He stated that he sometimes had to "wait a week" before he could see the house military chairman whom he described as "very busy."

Sen. Mead indicated earlier that the committee will decide whether to take legal steps to compel May to testify after testimony of other witnesses is completed.

AROUND CITY HALL

During council meeting which was held in the city building Monday, colleagues adopted a motion which instructed the city solicitor to ask the school board to exonerate taxes on a triangular piece of ground, known as lot 558, Section 50, bounded by Butler avenue, Superior street and Taylor street. The city obtained by purchase the lot in 1936 for the extension of Butler avenue but through some error got on the taxable list. It was bought for public purposes and it is probable the school board will acquiesce.

Roy McMillen, superintendent of the city disposal plant, has been delegated to attend the convention of the Pennsylvania sewage disposal plant operators at State College, August 28-30. This is a policy the city has had for years inasmuch as the meetings are informative.

Councilmen D. O. Davies and Joseph D. Alexander and Controller W. A. Moore are on vacation. Miss Edith Cleveland, finance officer, has been designated as deputy controller during Mr. Moore's absence.

New Proposals For World Atomic Control System

NEW YORK, July 16.—(INS)—The United States delegation to the United Nations atomic energy commission was understood today to be at work on a new memorandum proposing graduated stages for development of a world atomic control system.

The document envisages four steps, probably requiring many years to culminate in the release of enough secret atomic energy information to enable UN members to use the power for peaceful ends.

The steps are:
Creation of an atomic development authority by treaty; planning of a system of controlling the world's raw materials capable of atomic energy utilizing; perfection of the system; release of atomic energy information.

The memorandum, which will be the fourth presented by the United States, will be handed to the 12-man commission possibly before the week is over.

Meanwhile, associates of Bernard Baruch, American representative on the commission, said he will insist that the proposed treaty embody a provision specifically barring the great powers' veto. This, they said, will apply both in cases of atomic energy violations brought before the security council and on the everyday work of the projected international atomic authority.

Announce Plan To Speed Scrap To Steel Mills

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Reconversion Director John Steelman announced emergency steps on Monday to speed up the movement of scrap metal to steel mills.

Steelman acted following a report by the Civilian Production Administration that steel mills had less than two weeks supply of scrap on hand, and that because of this steel production might soon be curtailed.

Steelman called an inter-agency committee at the White House and afterwards announced that surplus ships, guns, tanks and ammunition will be broken up and made available to steel mills for conversion into peacetime goods.

The CPA will authorize the War Assets Administration to lease surplus navy and maritime shipyards and other ship scrapping facilities to private operators.

The navy and maritime commission will make several hundred ships immediately available for scrap salvage and overseas army commanders will be notified of the need for speedy return to this country of military scrap wherever it is available.

The 102 manufacturers bought 5,130 bales of the Japanese fiber for approximately $6,700,000, purchases being made by sealed bids to the federal agency. The awards were mailed out July 11.

Will Cut Public Debt August 1

Secretary Snyder Announces Reduction Of Billion And Quarter To Be Made

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Secretary of Treasury John Snyder announced today that the national debt will be reduced by one billion, 250 million dollars on August 1.

Snyder is following the policy of his predecessor, Fred Vinson, who, in his brief term in office cut the national indebtedness by over 12 billion dollars.

Previously Snyder told reporters that if "wild inflation" resulted from the death of OPA, the retirement of the debt would be temporarily halted because more money might be put into circulation.

The securities announced for retirement today are low interest issues held by banks, and their retirement would tend to diminish the money supply rather than increase it.

The one billion, 250 million dollar reduction will result from the retirement of roughly half of the $2,469,619,000 one-year certificates of indebtedness. This will bring the total debt reduction since the end of the war to 13 billion, 495 million dollars.

The public debt today stood at 268 billion, 234 million dollars.

Congress Recess Next Week Expected

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.), said after a White House conference Monday that he expects congress to recess for the summer the latter part of next week.

Barkley met with the president Monday morning together with Democratic leaders in their usual Monday morning conference.

Barkley said there was a general discussion of the legislative situation but he declined to comment on the OPA bill, because he is one of the conferees.

COSMIC PROJECT AT ILLINOIS GETS LARGE STATE FUND

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., July 16.—(INS)—Construction at the University of Illinois of a 400 million electron volt betatron, most powerful in the world, for use in the study of cosmic rays, was made possible Monday by release of $1,064,900 of postwar funds by Gov. Dwight H. Green.

Dr. Donald W. Kerst, young faculty physicist whose early betatrons were used in the Manhattan atomic project which developed the atomic bomb, said the unit would cost no more than the 250 million volt unit originally planned.

The state legislature appropriated $1,500,000 last year to make possible Dr. Kerst's continued development of cosmic ray study by means of the betatron.

Says New A-Bomb 1000 Times More Powerful Than Old

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—The Institute on World Control of Atomic Energy revealed Monday that the United States has an atom bomb 1,000 times more powerful than the weapons used against Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Dr. Norman Daves, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, declared at the two-day forum marking the first anniversary of the atomic age, that he received this information from Dr. Edward U. Condon, leading scientist.

Condon worked on the Army's Manhattan project which developed the bomb.

Daves, in calling for international control of atomic energy, asserted, after stating that "we have a bomb 1,000 times stronger than those used on Hiroshima and Nagasaki," that scientists "tremble to think" of what is to come.

Dr. Philip Morrison, professor of physics at Cornell University, and participant in the Los Alamos, N. M., project last July 16, maintained that any nation capable of manufacturing airplanes could go to A-bomb production within five or ten years.

Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace opened the sessions with a charge that congress has "wasted much time" without producing legislation for peacetime civilian control of nuclear energy.

War Threatened In Philippines

Civil War Threat In Central Luzon, 'Hukbalahaps' Are On Warpath

SAN FERNANDO, P. I., July 16.—(INS)—An uneasy peace reigns today in San Fernando, capital of the Filipino insurgent "Hukbalahaps". The capital of Pampanga province is quiet except for the rumble of military police trucks and armored cars moving north.

And on every street corner, men with Garand rifles and tommy guns slung over their shoulders are talking war. They are civil guards employed by landlords and they have no intention of surrendering their arms until the rebel Hukbalahap army is conquered.

Headquarters of the democratic alliance and the P. K. M. (National Peasants' Union) are silent and deserted. The Hukbalahaps and their supporters have retreated to the mountains just north of San Fernando to await peaceful settlement or to defend themselves in a desperate last-ditch fight if peace fails.

Philippine government forces control all but six towns in this province. These six towns ring the "Huk" fortress of Mount Arayat where an estimated 30 to 50 thousand Hukbalahaps are holding out, awaiting orders of their leaders to surrender or fight.

Whether there will be peace or war in central Luzon will be determined by the desperate bands of men holed up in this strategic mountain overlooking the central Luzon plains.

Browder Declares He Is Now Out Of Partisan Politics

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Earl Browder, deposed head of the Communist party in the United States, said today that he is "out of partisan politics."

Browder made this comment to reporters at the State department when asked if he cared to answer charges by French Communist leader Jacques Duclos which led to Browder's ouster.

He replied: "I am not interested in discussing that question. I'm not interested in engaging in any public debate."

"I am out of partisan politics, although I hope I am not out of public life."

CREDIT MARSHALL WITH SAVING 60,000 COMMUNIST TROOPS

NANKING, July 16.—(INS)—A Communist spokesman credited General George C. Marshall on Monday with preventing annihilation of 60,000 Communist troops who were surrounded and outnumbered by government forces in Hupeh province.

The spokesman said Marshall had devoted virtually all his time in the past four days to halting the government offensive in the province, where each side charged the other with firing the first shot.

However, the spokesman said peace negotiations are deadlocked and the political situation is now the same as it was last winter before Marshall's arrival in China as special envoy of President Truman.

How OPA Worked

In Lumber Regions Of Pacific Northwest

PORTLAND, Ore.—Strangely, most of the lumbermen I've listened to throughout this Pacific northwest which produces most of the nation's home-building timber are not particularly opposed to the idea of federal price controls.

That is, providing such controls are practical and are rigidly enforced.

"Strangely" is the right word, because they'll talk your arm off about how OPA had bred lawlessness into the logging and lumber industry and hampered production on essential housing materials.

When citing examples they naturally insist on anonymity, for some have admittedly been sidestepping the law and others think they might have to soon—"in order to stay in business."

But they don't think they should have been forced to such lengths, and that's why they're willing to talk.

Big lumbermen tell you the story of a certain grade of clear, straight-grained fir flooring. Before the war it sold for $80 a thousand feet, but the war-born OPA slapped a $60 ceiling on it—to force that type of output into ships' decks and such-like military needs.

Long Delay

Okay, said the operators, and complied. But came the war's end and OPA looked the other way. Despite the lumbermen's screams and would-be home-builders' frantic cries, it was seven months after V-J Day before OPA permitted the price to go up to $70 a thousand.

By this time, post-war production costs were up $10 per thousand, which meant the flooring normally should be selling for $80.

Arguments that the flooring couldn't be sawed at $70 and still show a profit brought the OPA response that the ceiling would have to stand unless the company's entire operations, including all cuts of lumber, showed a loss!

At least, that's the lumber companies' story. Right or wrong, the pertinent point is that, in order to meet the payroll, they're not sawing much fir flooring nowadays. And houses still need floors.

Timber-toppers have a tough life. So do lumberjacks. The cost of logging labor went up. But the various ceilings on logs delivered to the mill stood still. Loggers said: "We have to get more money to meet the camp payroll."

How It Was Done

They got it from some sawmills. How? Mileage. They're allowed so much hauling fee per mile. Perhaps they only hauled the logs from ten miles away. Said the companies: "Put it down for a hundred miles. We'll pay it."

"We didn't want to," said one mill's spokesman. "But we had to keep in production. Otherwise, we'd have closed down."

The woods were full of tricks—some seemingly legal, some semi-legal, some outright infractions of the law.

Suppose the ceiling on sawing four-by-sixes was too low to show a profit. Okay. Saw them four and one-fourth by six and one-fourth inches instead. You could get just as many beams that size out of the average log—and about $4 more a thousand feet!

Same thing with other standard sizes. Saw them oversize and get more money to meet the payroll. Keep rolling. Lumbermen reverse production even more than money, and production can't wait on the OPA!

OPA Allowed For That

Of course, the buyer had to have them played down to proper size then, but the OPA allowed for that. In fact it could be a separate racket. You got $150 a thousand feet for playing at the regular mill, but the OPA price was $550 if the playing was done at a specialized playing mill. So, if you must, move your places across the street, under another company name and collect $4 more per thousand feet.

The retail trick was good in a pinch. You could build a shack, buy a few kegs of nails, cane of paint and the like, get a license and call yourself the "Blank Wholesale and Retail Lumber Company." You still sold in wholesale lots, but charged the much higher retail prices!

But countless operators played it straight with even the most general law. And since they simply couldn't afford to saw out some of the most essential types of building timbers national housing suffered. And even the angle-shooters had to abandon some important items.

They don't like the angle-shooting either. Lumbering is their business. And they hope any future government price control carries more practical common sense.

"But we still need price controls," one operator summed it up. "With all this housing shortage, if we didn't have it, you'd see the loggers, sawmills, lumber brokers and retailers in one big leap-frogging race—and nobody'd know where he stood!"

They were quartered at barracks on the field and have been slated for first-hand instruction on aviation. Classes included aircraft identification, aural and visual code, flight theory, aircraft structure, meteorology, navigation and traffic control.

Predict House Battle Resulting On A-Bomb Issues

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Atomic energy legislation headed for a house battle Monday as foes promised further disclosures of threats to atomic bomb secrets if control is taken out of military hands.

Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., said he expected further ammunition from house un-American activities committee counsel Ernie Adamson, who is now conducting an investigation of the atomic bomb project at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

In addition, Thomas, an implacable foe of atomic legislation at this session of congress, hinted at revelations from "other sources" of dangers threatening the security of the atom bomb.

Thomas last week made public a preliminary report by Adamson that army security officers at Oak Ridge found United States safety "definitely in danger" from activities of atomic scientists.

The New Jersey Republican promised a parliamentary filibuster to keep the atomic control bill from a house vote as long as possible and said his chances were "fair" for killing the measure entirely. He declared:

"We will delay and delay and delay. We will use every parliamentary trick known to man."

The senate-passed McMahon bill was scheduled to come to the floor today under a rule permitting four hours of general debate and unlimited amendment from the floor.

Rev. Jones is a member of the Christian Palestine committee and has attended several of the regional conferences on the issue. One of these conferences was held recently at Ocean City, N. J.

He is at present preparing a statement to the Protestant Christian churches of this city on the Christian's obligation to the problem of Palestine, which will be presented in the near future.

Sometimes it looks like a Christmas tree

When you lift your telephone receiver to make a call, a little light glows on the switchboard at the central office.

Sometimes so many lights come on at once that the board looks like a Christmas tree!

People are using the telephone more than ever. And, in order to provide service sooner to the many people who are waiting for telephones, we're stretching our switchboard facilities.

Sometimes we just can't handle the load without delays.

So, if the operator doesn't answer immediately when you lift the receiver, we hope you'll understand. This situation is temporary. New facilities are on order, to make your telephone service better than ever. Thanks for cooperating!

TWO LITTLE GIRLS...

about 12 or 14 years old, came in our store and asked to see our diamonds and wedding rings. They were shown into our beautiful diamond room and were seated in big, spacious easy chairs facing the gleaming mahogany desk. Their eyes roved in excitement from the deep piled rug on the floor to the hand-painted lights and rich walnut walls. Our expert on diamonds took over, showing gleaming flashing diamonds whose fire seemed to touch the hearts of those two young ladies. One could almost see the visions shining from their eyes, of a handsome young man buying them a Princess diamond in future years. Our diamond expert knew that there would be no sale, but such beautiful gems are a pleasure to show, and our time is not so precious that we can't take time to be courteous to our young friends who will be our future customers. These two girls will probably own a Princess diamond when the time comes, and they meet that man of their dreams.

Grown-ups, too, develop an excited light, when we show the Princess diamond, for they are looking at gems precious beyond comparison... gems suitable and fitting to express man's oldest passion, love of man for woman.

Two Russian Observers May Leave Bomb Test

Displeased At Statements Seen In Newspaper Article Criticizing
Soviet Union

By JAMES L. KILGALLIN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD USS PANAMINT, Mid-Pacific, July 16.—Two Russian observers aboard the USS Panamint, who were offended by a newspaper article criticizing the Soviet Union, threatened today to refuse to view the second atomic bomb test at Bikini as a protest measure.

The article in question was published this morning in the ship's paper, "The Panamint Press." The story, under a New York dateline, carried charges by William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to Russia, stating that the "Soviet Union has as its goal world conquest for Communism."

Bullitt was quoted as saying that the United States should "not hesitate to use the atomic bomb to stop new crimes of Soviet imperialism."

The Russian scientists aboard the Panamint read the article at breakfast and obviously displeased, retired for a conference on deck.

In an interview with International News Service, Professor Simon P. Alexandrov indicated he and his colleague, Dr. Michael G. Mescheryakov, were ready to leave the ship because of the article.

Alexandrov said he intends to cable the Soviet government regarding the incident.

Final Atomic Practice Bomb Has Been Dropped

By LEE VAN ATTA
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

ENIWETOK, July 16.—The final atomic practice bomb in the Bikini experiments was dropped today by crews of the atomic aerial task force.

The final "bomb" was dropped yesterday by a crew headed by Col. William Blanchard of Chelsea, Mass., air attack commander with the bomber which dropped the Nagasaki atomic bomb.

Capt. Kermit Behan of San Antonio, Tex., was Blanchard's bombardier, and his practice drop was termed as "outstanding" by air officials.

Admiral Halsey Says Bomb Tests Show Navy Need

SAN JUAN, P. R., July 16.—(INS)—Admiral William F. "Bull" Halsey said today he believes the atomic bomb tests at Bikini atoll proved the "Navy has come to stay."

He declared that while he has had no official report on the Bikini experiments, he feels results indicate it will be necessary to redesign some types of warships to meet new conditions.

Halsey said press reports led him to believe that fires produced by atomic explosions are no greater than those caused by Japanese kamikaze attacks.

Birthday Brings Benedum New Well

PITTSBURGH, July 16.—(INS)—Michael L. Benedum, multi-millionaire oil man, made two strikes today. First it was his 77th birthday.

Second was that he had struck oil again. A wildcat well in Davall county, Texas, extending new territory, came in this morning.

Benedum, who is credited with discovering more oil than any other "wildcat," said he was still looking for new fields to conquer.

Truman Directs Draft Include Youths Of 19

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—President Truman today directed that future vacancies in the armed forces be filled in the age group of 19 through 29 years.

The Chief Executive approved a recommendation by the Selective Service system to that effect.

The previous draft age set by an interim selection service measure was from 20 through 29 years.

Today's order thus drops the age group by one year to include the 19-year-olds.

Selective Service based its recommendations on a request by the War department.

Second Week Period

Seventy-six young boy campers, the largest number ever to make the trip to Camp Fred L. Rentz, arrived at the summer site Monday and lost no time in getting into the swing of activities.

By noon the boys had been divided into their athletic teams and were engaged in softball and volleyball contests with the Junior Strugglers, led by Del Matthews defeating the "Rinkydinks" by a 32-12 score. The Panther Cubs walloped the Cardinals in volleyball. Following a short swim in the creek the boys sat down to a delicious meal prepared for them by Mrs. Oscar Saul and Mrs. Tillie Mechling, the camp cooks.

In the early evening the boys played a game of "capture the flag" and then gathered around a campfire session. As the first day came to an end the campers went to their comfortable cabins for the night. Taps were sounded by Tom Hares and Jim Hamilton, camp councilors.

To Name Successor To Sidney Hillman

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—CIO leaders began assembling in Washington today for an important three-day conference at which a new chairman of the union's Political Action Committee is expected to be announced.

Advance indications are that CIO President Philip Murray will be urged to step into the post left vacant by the death of Sidney Hillman and run the PAC at least through next November's elections.

Thus far, however, Murray has given no sign as to what action he contemplates.

Cleveland Wife Is Held In Shooting

CLEVELAND, July 16.—(INS)—Babe Rutledge, 32, of Cleveland, according to police, was telling a group of friends in the presence of her husband that "it is only natural" for a man to prefer the company of younger women.

"And this is only natural," the police quoted the 32-year-old Mrs. Ruby Rutledge as retorting, while at the same time she fired a revolver shot into her spouse's left lung. Rutledge was reported in a serious condition in Mount Sinai hospital and the police were holding his wife pending an investigation.

LEAVES WITH HIS RING

PITTSBURGH, July 16.—(INS)—Sam Hill, of Pittsburgh, wondered today "what in the Sam Hill goes on here?"

He met a girl in a saloon last night. She admired his ring and purred:

"Let me try it on."
Sam allowed her, and shortly both she and the ring, worth $350, disappeared.

War Department Scored By Mead

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—Sen. Mead (D) N. Y., accused the war department today of "gross laxity" in failing to investigate, before advancing large sums to a "battered" war contract company whose promoters had questionable records.

The chairman of the senate investigating committee announced that his group will recommend that contract laws contain "a strong provision" for investigation of contract applicants before they are given authority to "spend government money."

Yankees No Longer Threaten Lead Of Hot Red Sox

Idle Bosox Gain As Tigers Defeat Slipping Yanks

Yanks Now Trail Red Sox 11½ Games, Cardinals Creeping Up

BOSTON BRAVES DEFEAT PIRATES

By PAT ROBINSON
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Yankees aren't going anywhere this season, but they continue to be an amazing draw at the gate.

They drew 39,393 with the Tigers in the stadium last night to bring their home attendance to 1,430,275 for 44 games. This is only 4,891 behind the all-time high for a season's home games set by the Cubs in 1929.

Tigers Claw Yanks
And with all these home folks looking on the Tigers took them, 2 to 0, on the two-hit pitching of Freddy Hutchinson. Spid Chandler, in search of his 14th victory, was turned back when the Tigers bunched four singles for their two markers.

The defeat slipped the Yankees 11½ games behind the idle Red Sox and left them only a game and a half ahead of the Tigers. The Yankees have made 10 hits in their last three hits with the Tigers or just about what Ted Williams would make all by himself.

Cards Win Again
Meanwhile the Cards were making it three in a row over the Dodgers, 10-4, and are now only a game and a half off the pace and in a nice spot to make their run through the stretch. Our Bums have been living up to their nickname in the west. They have done remarkably well to stay on top so long but from here on in class will probably tell. And as they say at the race track, the Cards finish.

Monkey Hafner outlasted Tex Shirley under the lights as the smartest man in the game made it three in a row over the Browns 4 to 2. And Phil Muehlstein, pitching in pre-war form, gave only two hits as the Athletics downed the White Sox, 12 to 0.

Browns Edge Pirates
Old Johnny Niggelina, a refugee from the Browns, made a successful debut as a National League pitcher when he knuckled the Pirates, 3 to 2, in two tight spots when the Pirates loaded the bases with one out but even time he feasted out of trouble.

The Reds now sit the Phillies 4 to 2 on Grady Hatton's three run homer. Charley Stanceau pitched a nice game for the losers but he made the mistake of popping out two passes just before Hatton tied off on one. Even Dave Kosio couldn't win for the hapless Reds, who dropped another to Hank Wase and the Cubs, 3 to 1. The victory left the Cubs only 4½ games behind the stumbling Dodgers and in a nice spot to make their bid for the pennant.

Baseball Guild Organizer Making New Effort To Unify Pirates

PITTSBURGH, July 16.—(INS)—Robert Murphy, dynamic organizer and director of the American Baseball Guild, will play his last card today when he petitions the Pennsylvania Labor Relations board for recognition of his professional ball-players' union.

Murphy will present his plea in Pittsburgh before Examiner Conrad H. Chesterton's two previous attempts to win recognition of his organization failed; first, when Pirate players balked down at the last minute on a scheduled strike June 7, and second, when the NLRB refused to assume jurisdiction in the ABG dispute.

Freight Claims Highlight Meeting

Truckers See Pictures Of Proper And Improper Methods Of Handling Goods

Claims were the chief item of consideration Monday night when the Lawrence county chapter, Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association held its monthly dinner meeting in The Castleton hotel. Paul W. Keely, former state president of PMTA, was the speaker and a picture, "The Twenty Million Dollar Challenge," was shown by C. M. England.

Proper packaging of merchandise was the first step stressed, with docking, loading and hauling given equal attention. Concealed damage claims came in for some attention and the total claim bill for the country in a year presented, $20,000,000.

For some time the idea of a traffic club for New Castle has been considered. On Monday night President J. Fred Clarke appointed a committee to investigate the matter further and to take whatever steps may be necessary.

A nominating committee was appointed to bring in a list of nominations for officers at the next meeting. The nominating committee consists of William A. Francis, chairman; George A. Ritter, W. J. McCormick, Paul W. Keely, Robert Prentiss and C. W. Robinson.

"I'm 40, but people take me
for much younger"

The above statement, taken from a recent letter to us, is typical of the enthusiastic endorsement Endocrine has received over the last nine years from thousands of grateful women. For it is a fact that Endocrine can, especially for most middle-aged women, help the skin of face and throat to become firmer, fresher, more alluringly youthful looking than was hitherto thought possible through cosmetics. Endocrine contains Activol, an effective replacement for woman's own natural, skin-beautifying substance, which as it is absorbed by the skin, helps restore normal growth to ageing cells and tissue. Ask for and insist upon Endocrine. Many report marked results in only 30 days.

Atomic Energy Legislation To Reach House

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(INS)—The house rules committee was slated today to send atomic energy legislation to the house floor over the protests of backers of military control.

Influential members of the powerful rules group predicted that the atomic control bill would be given the green light despite the opposition of a Republican bloc which seeks to prevent any action on the measure at this session of congress.

The amendment-riddled, senate-passed McMahon bill was scheduled by the house leadership for final action next week under a rule permitting some six hours of general debate and unrestricted amendments from the floor.

The version approved by the house military affairs committee differed sharply from the broad civilian control bill passed by the senate.

Provision for a five-man all-civilian control commission was amended by the house committee to require at least one military member and permit no more than two military men on the board.

The McMahon bill was also changed to permit the army to manufacture atomic bombs with presidential authorization.

A Republican minority on the house military affairs committee submitted a separate report on the bill challenging a provision banning private patents on atomic developments.

Fifteen Puppies Eat In Relays

OSCEOLA MILLS, Pa., July 16.—(INS)—Fifteen foxhound pups today had to line up in typical Army "chow line" style to get their rations.

The mother can't handle her sprightly offspring all at once so they eat in shifts—four at a time. However, she was having much trouble keeping the pups in line, the owners, Paul and Edwin Buterworth, are trying to teach them to take their meals from a bottle. The pups are survivors of a litter of 19.

IN THE OPEN

A tiny blue-gray gnatcatcher flew into the "applesauce" tree and perched the premises with great thoroughness. Phoebe perched on the clothes poles and waged incessant war on the neighborhood insects. House wrens bubbled about all over the place, while a trio of chimney swifts put on an exhibition of formation flying overhead. An indigo bunting found a perch to his liking in the tall elm below the house. Here he sat and poured out that monotonous roundelay which is so much a part of the mid-summer recital.

The July afternoon wore slowly on while countless winged insects drowned lazily in the sunlight. Honeybees had drained the last drop of nectar from the catalpa blooms by the dooryard, and had turned their attention to the large stands of tall yellow mustard in the unkempt acreage below the back fence. Now and then a gorgeous golf finch looped along, trailing a tiny shower of music behind each "loop" of flight. A red admiral butterfly, dressed in brilliant color, posed in the sun on the warm sidewalk.

The dragonfly known as the "ten-spot" spent more than an hour on the tepee poles in the bean rows. He would select a good lookout perch atop one of the poles, and when a juicy-looking fly buzzed past he would dart out and nab the hapless insect. The corn and tomato rows fairly boomed along in the sun, refreshed by recent soaking showers.

Full Woods In Bloom

In the wasteland below the house all the tall weeds are now coming into bloom. The fierce struggle for a place in the sun is ending, and the fittest survivors are now throwing out the blossoms which will get the seed to start next year's battle. I crossed the line fence and waded into a patch of yellow mustard, with tall blooming stalks standing well over six feet high. Honeybees and the white cabbage butterflies were fairly repast among the spires of yellow blossoms.

The European immigrant known as dilweed has established a firm foothold in this field. It is a foul smelling weed, with finely cut foliage, presenting thousands of flowers almost identical to the common daisy, but slightly smaller. Teasel grew high, wide and handsome throughout the area, carrying its own water supply in the deep cups at the leaf joints. In order to compete with the dense undergrowth, the Queen Anne's Lace had thrown its flowering umbels five feet or more above the ground.

There were several choice blooms to be noted amid the general tangle of this neglected field. The tall bergamot, with its aromatic lavender flower heads, stood about in great clumps, waiting for the sphinx moths and the humming birds who are its special guests. Another beauty I have always admired was the fringed loosestrife, which is deserving of mention in any company. The sultry orange petals of the woodland sunflower accented a small knoll where a company of these six-footers had become established.

A bob-tailed baby song sparrow flopped through the undergrowth in terrified manner as I blundered about. Somewhere overhead a "rain crow" commented, throwing his voice around carelessly with ventriloquial effect. I came to the edge of a swampy swale which drains through this field and was delighted to encounter a large clump of the moisture-loving muckkey flower. This is another beauty of the summer byways which deserves wider acquaintance, particularly among the geatry operating rock garden pools.

Most of the wild garlic stalks had flowered and were now compact companies of tiny bulbils, but there the odd purple florets could still be seen. Another striking bloom was the pointed spire of the wood sage, a sturdy perennial of the moist spots. Ground cherry is quite common in this field, hiding its pretty yellow bloom beneath a canopy of leaves. Another old favorite, the moth mullein, stood erect and handsome in an open area. Bunches of white vernal, motherwort, pale touch-me-not and the tall meadow rue—all were there to contribute to the interest and beauty of the floral picture.

Soon In Flower

I was quite pleased to find a large station of the exotic American senecio growing in this field, not 200 yards from my doorway. The buds are just now forming and should be in full flower in another two weeks. Another discovery was a patch of moneywort, displaying its pretty yellow bloom in the meadow edging our lower fencerow. I had been hunting a patch of this trailer for use as a ground cover, never dreaming it was already established in the backyard.

After considerable inquiry I have finally established identity of a beautiful orchid-like blossom which was blooming freely in dense patches in the shallows of a stream which I recently fished. It carries the quite common name of water willow, a clumsy title for a wilting of rare beauty.
